Stacey Glazier, owner of Fleet Transportation, believes that high caliber service and competitive pricing are the makings of superior service.

“QUOTE” How you feel about happy customers? What does customer service mean to you? How do you feel about your WBJ ranking? What does being women owned mean for your business and what relation to service does it bring?

The Washington Business Journal ranked Fleet Transportation among some of the top transportation companies in its yearly issue. Fleet Transportation has always made it a point to ensure your experience with them goes above and beyond what you expect.

The Washington Business Journal is part of a premier media solution platform for companies that allows them to strategically target and reach business decision makers. Their audience is a major influence making it an amazing platform for Fleet Transportation to be ranked in.

As a women owned business, Fleet Transportation sets themselves apart because of their ability to present their clients with tailored options to meet their needs. From heads of state to Fortune 500 companies to event planners and celebrities, Fleet Transportation makes sure each customer has a safe and prompt experience.

What makes Fleet Transportation an added bonus is their high regard for the environment. As they commit to the investment of their future and industry evolution, they keep a strong commitment to the environment, prompting them to seek environmental sustainability initiatives through phased implementation in a partnership with Green Ride Global.
